VOLUME XVII

COLUMBIA, ADAIR COUNTY, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY JUNE 24, 1914.

NUMBER 34

The News Brought Old Memories.

The following letter explains itself. The writer and the one to whom it is addressed are natives of Columbia. Gen. Hardin, some years ago, was the Attorney General of Kentucky, and as a politician was known throughout the State. Mr. Burton was a gallant Confederate soldier, and commanded a squad of sharpshooters. In the history of the First Kentucky brigade, written by Ed Porter Thompson, he is given more credit for daring bravery than any other one man. It is said that in one hotly contested battle a piece of shell struck Capt. Burton, knocking him down. His men thought that he was killed and the shock was terrible. Instantly, Burton stood up, took off his cap and threw it into the air and commenced singing the Bonnie Blue flag. Then it was his men were ready to march into the jaws of death.

June 6th, 1914
Mr. George Heck Burton,
—Troy, S. C.

Dear Heck:

I have just read your letter in the Adair County News and your reference to Boots Owens and your own name carried me back into the wonderland of dreams and memories.

The faces of the boys and girls, like fairies, flit before my mental vision in panorama that seems a living reality, and I hear the echo of voices in laughter and song across the gulf that lies between the now and then.

Well, Heck, I thought that you, like so many others, had answered the roll-call, but I see that you are much alive and a "kickin'" and that in meeting the stern and grave duties of life you still have a heart and a sentiment and a love for old Adair, and that boyhood memories are sweet to you.

What is life without its soul and sentiment; without its childhood and its memories: growing brighter and more beautiful as we see and hear them through the deepening mists of the departing years?

Heck, I just wanted to say, howdy, with best wishes, God bless you.

Your boyhood friend,

Wat Hardin.

P. S.—My home is still in Old Kentucky; I am here in Richmond, Va., on a visit to my daughter.

Commits Suicide.

Mrs. Thomas Collins committed suicide at her home at Lebanon Saturday morning about 7 o'clock by shooting herself through the head with a revolver. Mr. and Mrs. Collins resided in this city for about a year, he being an employe of the monument and marble works of Mr. Joe Sims. They removed to Lebanon about four years ago, when Mr. Sims removed his establishment there. Mrs. Collins had been in feeble health for some time, at times suffering untold agony. She was afflicted with head trouble, and had recently undergone an operation for it, but received no relief from the surgeon; and her last resort was to take her own life. The deceased was born and reared in Russell county and was esteemed by all who knew her. Mr. Collins was almost distracted by his wife's sad ending.—Campbellsville News.

Two Good Sermons.

Rev. L. C. Kelley, pastor of the Campbellsville Baptist Church, filed Rev. O. P. Bush's appointments at this place last Sunday forenoon and evening. He delivered two very able discourses, and the people of Columbia were delighted with him. On both occasions large congregations greeted him. Sunday night he was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Harris.

Misses Mary Lucy and Leanova Lowe entertained a number of the young people of Columbia last Saturday evening, in honor of Misses Adell Read, Fort Smith, Ark., and Ada Caldwell, Campbellsville. There were music and games and the evening most delightfully spent. Refreshments were served. Twelve couples put in an appearance.

Get your measure taken for a new suit at Garrison Bros. They measure for the Royal Tailoring Co. A fit guaranteed. When in need of groceries call our store. Phone, No. 192. 34-21. Garrison Bros.

The colored institute will be held the last week in July, beginning on Monday, the 27th. Prof. J. W. Bell, of Burlington, will conduct it.

Remember that the Adair County Teachers' Institute will begin August 10th.

New wheat is setting at 95 cents per bushel over the State.

A Native of Adair.

Mr. E. H. Hughes, cashier of the First National Bank, this place, received a letter from his brother, Mr. J. D. Hughes, Quanah, Texas, a few days ago. In the letter was this paragraph: "The other day some of the State candidates spoke here and among them was our State Treasurer, Mr. J. M. Edwards. He happened in the bank after the speaking and made the remark about knowing Melvin Traylor and coming from the same county in Kentucky, and after talking to him for a little while I found he was an uncle of Lawrence Neil. He is very much like him and shows he is related. He stands very high in the State and has made us a good Treasurer. I am sure you remember that family, as he said they lived near Gradyville. It seems to me they lived near us."

Mr. Edwards left Adair county, with his parents, about forty years ago. At the time of his departure he was living on what is known as the Allen Keltner farm, in the Gradyville precinct. He is an uncle of Dr. L. C. Elbert, and Eugene Neil.

I will have a fresh load of Jersey heifers on the Columbia market county fair, July 7th. This is an extra nice lot. They have all been bred. Some of them will be fresh in a short time. J. H. Smith. 34-21.

Trial Now On.

The trial of Silas Sullivan, charged with being implicated in removing indictments from the Russell county circuit clerk's office, is now on at Jamestown. It was not believed that a jury could have been secured in Russell county, and by order of Judge Carter, fifty men were summoned from Wayne county from which the jury was made up. The defense is represented by Lilburn Phelps and other local attorneys, the State by A. A. Huddleston and R. E. Lloyd. A great deal of interest is being manifested in the outcome of the case.

Ninety-Nine Last May.

Mrs. Nancy Acre, who lives on the Russell Springs road, about twelve miles from this place, was ninety-nine years old last May. She is hale and hearty and says if her eyesight was good she would show the young women how to work. Her mind is clear, and she can tell many interesting incidents that occurred in the county eighty years ago. She had a brother, who died a few years ago at the age of 102.

Fire Insurance.

I am glad to announce to the insuring public that all of the companies represented by my agency have resumed operation in the State and I am now ready to write such business as we have heretofore handled.

34-11. G. R. Reed,
Columbia, Ky.

Death at Sparksville.

Mr. Henry Baker, who was about fifty years old, died in the Sparksville country last Thursday night. He leaves a wife and six children. He was a good citizen, and had been afflicted with several different complaints for a number of years.

Sherrod Murrell, who was a son of John Mart Murrell, met with a serious accident in the Carmel neighborhood last Thursday. He was painting a drelling, the ladder slipping, he was dashed to the ground, a distance of thirty feet. One of his hips was dislocated and he was otherwise bruised about the body. It will be some days before he will be able to work.

The Board of Trustees of the Graded School met last Saturday and decided to put up a gymnasium. It will be built to the left of the school building, and the board thinks the expense will not be more than five hundred dollars.

Mr. Charles Herriford and family left Monday for a three month's stay in Green county. Mr. Herriford is in the timber business, and during the family's stay in Green county they will live in a tent, one having been shipped from Lexington.

The lot back of V. M. Gowdy & Co.'s wholesale house has been turned into a quail yard, and gentlemen of spare time put in several hours daily trying to ring the peg.

Mr. P. H. Durham, of this place, said one root of old hickory, that was cut from a tree, had been found in the State.

Dealing in Pearls.

While in Jamestown, Monday of last week, we met Mr. Cyrus Campbell, who lives at Creelsboro, and who is a prosperous farmer, but when Cumberland river is low, he spends much of his time pearl hunting. He has been dealing in these gems for a number of years, and has quite a lot on hand now, some of them very valuable. He has received as much as two and three hundred dollars for one stone. He usually sells on the New York market. This industry has been prosecuted on Cumberland river for a good many years, and there yet remain large quantities of mussels in the bed of the river, and this summer the river banks will be lined with men hunting for the precious stones. The local dealers hire men to grab the mussels and they are opened in skiffs or on the banks of the river. Often a thousand mussels are opened before a pearl is found, and then may not be successful.

If you owe me for millinery please call at my residence and settle at once. I need the money.
34-11. Mrs. Geo. W. Staples.

Married.

Mr. Uriah Antle, of Russell county, son of Mr. George Antle, and Miss Ura Collins, daughter of Mr. Geo. Collins, who lives near Montpelier, came to Columbia last Wednesday, secured license and were married at the home of Rev. Marion Antle, on Bomar Heights. The couple will leave for Kansas in about two weeks where they expect to reside.

Last January Mr. Sam Lewis traded a horse to Mr. Clem Burton that had been in his possession ten years. Monday the same animal arrived at the Lewis gate, asked for his former owner, and was invited into the lot. Mr. Lewis does not know who the present owner of the animal is, but he can get him by paying for the notice and the expense of feed.

Married in the State of Washington.

Mr. Robert G. Baker, son of Judge H. E. Baker, Campbellsville, was married in Tacoma, Washington, on June 12, to Miss Alice Holgerson. The groom is an employe of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, and has been in Washington about four years. He has a number of relatives and friends in Columbia and Adair county.

Alice Smith, a colored woman, who lives in the suburbs of Columbia, went to Louisville several weeks ago and was operated on for tumor. It was successfully removed and it weighed twelve pounds. She is almost well and will be at home in a very short time. Her husband, George Smith, who is a very industrious man, is very much elated, and is real glad that he had the money to pay for the operation, for a nurse and board for his wife during the trying ordeal. A colored man who sticks to his companion under all circumstances shows good qualities; and George's action in this case is to be praised.

Mr. Sisco Dockery, who is known to every body in Russell county, and who has a large acquaintance in Adair county, is in very poor health. He is probably the best fixed man, financially, in Russell county. He owns two or three valuable river bottom farms, conducts a general store in Jamestown, and is President of the Bank at that place. Evidently his decline in health is due to too much business. There is no necessity for him to work, and, in our judgment, a few months rest at a quiet watering place, is what he needs.

Mr. Phil Orton, who several years ago, was a barber in Columbia, remaining here quite awhile, died at Tarcourt, the home of his mother, in Clinton county, last week. He was a victim of consumption. He also worked at his trade in Campbellsville and Lebanon.

The seventeen year locust is due to appear this year, according to a report sent out by the Agricultural Experiment Station. Seventeen years ago they deposited the egg that are to make the locusts this year.

The crowd in attendance at the opening of the Russell circuit court, at Jamestown, was much smaller than usual. The absence of many farmers was due to wheat harvesting.

If you are going from home, have returned from a visit, or if there is sickness that should be mentioned, please the News. It is a condition of The News to see every one.

A Hint to Jamestown.

Jamestown has made considerable improvement in the last five or six years in the way of erecting residences, mostly on Columbia street. Twelve or fourteen nice homes have been built, and others will probably go up this year. The entire town is sadly in need of side walks, and as concreting is cheap and durable, the property holders should get busy. There could be no greater improvement for this old historic town. The walks would enhance the value of property much more than the cost of building them; then the place would become more inviting, the population would increase, business would grow and the female population would rise up and call the men blessed.

Edmonton, about the size of Jamestown is putting down walks, and last week an electric light plant was installed. The citizenship of Jamestown is good and it should get busy, or more enterprising towns will out-strip it.

For Sale, Cheap.

Good 8-room house, 2 acre lot, fine well, good barn and all necessary out-buildings. Handy to school.
34-11. E. L. Sinclair,
Columbia, Ky.

Miss Jennie Garnett has just handed us a catalogue of Cumberland College, a Baptist institution located at Williamsburg, Ky. It is a splendid piece of printing, the college proper and all buildings connected, showing up nicely. The dormitory for girls is a magnificent structure and was built at a cost of thirty thousand dollars. The book gives a complete history of the school since its establishment, nearly thirty years ago. Twenty-one names make up the faculty, Miss Garnett, being one of the number. She has charge of the piano department, and has had for the past three years. Last school here there were entered four hundred and sixty pupils, coming from various counties in Kentucky.

Tax Notice.

Parties owing town taxes for the year 1914 are requested to settle at once. 6 percent penalty added Oct. 1st.
32-11. W. B. Patteson,
Collector.

It is said that Mr. Powers is not as strong in Russell county as heretofore, Senator Bosworth, his opponent in the race for Congress, having a following in every precinct in the county. It is reported that the Russell Springs precinct is almost solid for him. Senator Bosworth addressed a large audience at Jamestown the first day of circuit court. He also spoke at Russell Springs Monday night, same date.

Hens for Sale.

I have 40, 2 and 3 year old, finely bred White Leghorn hens for sale at 60 cents each. This is your opportunity to get the best at a low price.
33-21. J. O. Russell

Comes the cheering news that out in the briar patches, along the fence rows and in the thickets the blackberries are hanging in great clusters from the bushes, presaging an abundant crop of this delicious berry. Unless blighted by drouth the crop will be unusually large.

With plenty of fresh garden truck coming, life begins to be worth living now. Owners of gardens are now enjoying new beans, beets, potatoes, and "sich." The man who attempts living without a garden knows not the joys of being a producer, nor the satisfaction that comes from eating off "the fat of the land."

Cowpeas, Alfalfa and Soy Beans.

Cowpeas, alfalfa, and soy beans can be successfully made into silage by exercising the same precautions as with clover. They should be cut at the same time as for haymaking. However, it is ordinarily preferable, as with clover, to make them into hay rather than silage. The fermentations which take place in silage made of legumes cause a greater loss of nutritive material than with corn silage. Corn husks and pea vines from canning factories, beet pulp, and other by-products are also used in certain localities for filling the silo.

Corn for the silo can be cut either by hand or by machine. Hand cutting is practiced on farms where the amount of corn to be harvested is so small as to make the expense of purchasing a corn harvester too great to justify its use. Hand cutting is slow and laborious, and there are probably few localities now where the purchase of a harvester would not be a profitable investment.

There are on the market several makes of silage cutters that will give satisfaction.

The capacity of the machine to be purchased is an important consideration which should not be overlooked. Many persons make the mistake of getting a cutter which is too small, thus making the operation of filling the silo very slow and interfering with the continuous employment of the entire force of men. It is better to get a machine large enough, so that every one will be able to keep busy all the time. The larger cutters are equipped with self-feeders, a labor saving device which the smaller sizes lack. The usual length of cutting varies from one-half to 1 inch. The latter is considered a little too long, since pieces of this length will neither pack so closely in the silo nor be so completely consumed when fed as will the shorter lengths. On the other hand, the longer the pieces the more rapidly can the corn be run through the cutter.

In case the corn has become too dry or ripe before it is put into the silo, water should be added to supply the deficiency of moisture necessary to make the silage pack properly. Unless it is well packed the silage will "fire-fang" or deteriorate through the growth of mold. Enough water should be added to restore the moisture content of the corn to what it would be if cut at the proper stage. The water may be added by running directly into the silo by means of a hose or by running through the blower. It is claimed that by running it into the blower the water is more thoroughly mixed with the cut corn.

Temperatures.

(Louisville Times.)

When old Sol goes on a rampage and his blistering rays come sizzling down through the ether, there is only one thing that the average human being takes cognizance of, and that is that it is "hot." This is the comprehensive summing-up of the situation, regardless of mean temperature, extreme temperature, humidity, official, kiosk or street temperature. To the man with the wilted collar, streaming forehead and prickly heat-studded neck there is no other word but "hot." Very often he adds a simile by way of comparing the torridity with that of a region politely known as Gehenna.

It may be a good thing, in view of the proneness of the human race to auto-hypnosis, that a distinction is drawn between the "official" temperature as recorded by the Weather Bureau and the "street temperature," or the temperature in which people "move and have their being." The official temperature in Louisville is taken by instruments in a latticed cage at the top of the Inter-Southern building, nineteen stories above the street. The rays of the sun do not strike the official thermometer. When this instrument registers 95 degrees, it means that this is the temperature at an altitude of nearly 200 feet, and of an atmosphere which is cooled by upper air currents, if any should be stirring.

"Street temperature," the temperature of the baking slabs of glaring concrete and the pitchy wooden blocks of the street which are exuding bubbling coal tar, is quite another matter. Here Old Sol throws down his red-hot shafts and they rebound against the face of the luckless pedestrian, pour up his trouser legs as if they were flues, and otherwise envelop, smother, wrap, stifle and take possession of him. This temperature usually is about ten degrees higher than "official" temperature, and several degrees higher than that of the Government kiosk in Lincoln Place, where the thermometer is shaded.

It is best, no doubt, that the "street temperature" is not brought too prominently before the notice of the public. The tendency of a heat sufferer is to grow irritable and even hysterical over trifles, and to be told that he is moving about in a temperature of 105 when he thought it was only 96 or 97, might not be good for him. Such person would not be responsible for his actions if someone should slap him on the back and ask "Is it hot enough for you?"

Take Plenty of Time to Eat.

There is a saying that "rapid eating is slow suicide." If you have formed the habit of eating too rapidly you are most likely suffering from indigestion or constipation, which will result eventually in serious illness unless corrected. Digestion begins in the mouth. Food should be thoroughly masticated and insalivated. Then when you have a fullness of the stomach or feel dull and stupid after eating, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets. Many severe cases of stomach trouble and constipation have been cured by the use of these tablets. They are easy to take and most agreeable in effect. Sold by Paull Drug Co. Ad

Mr. Roosevelt and the Canal Tolls.

President Wilson and the Democratic party have redeemed the pledges given by President Roosevelt to all nations of the use of the new International Highway on equal terms.

That pledge President Taft dishonored, and then suggested that it might be left to the Supreme Court or to the Hague Tribunal.

President Wilson appealed to Congress to wipe this blotch from the 'scutcheon by living up alike to the letter and the spirit of the treaty.

It was a brave thing to do. The Hay-Pauncefote treaty was primarily a Roosevelt treaty. Hay and Root were members of Roosevelt's cabinet.

The chief obstacle to the building of the canal by the United States was the Clayton-Bulwer treaty.

We could have notified England of our purpose to abrogate it, but we did not.

On the contrary, advised by Hay and Roosevelt, we proposed to amend it, substituting for it the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

It was not hastily drawn nor hastily adopted.

The construction given to it by the subsidists was offered and rejected.

With the Hay-Pauncefote treaty adopted, we could go ahead untrammelled. And we did.

The building of the canal by President Roosevelt was made possible by the promise of equality. It was a promise broken by President Taft and a Republican Congress, redeemed by President Wilson and a Democratic Congress.

The repeal act cannot be assailed by President Roosevelt, even for campaign purposes, without staining the brightest chapter in his own history.—Louisville Post.

Business Situation.

There is an old adage which runs: "Truth lies at the bottom of the well." As regards the present business situation, truth lies somewhere between what Republican and Democratic politicians are now proclaiming. The Republicans claim that the country is on the verge of a financial panic; Democrats boast that the country was never more prosperous than at the present time, railroad conditions alone excepted. Of course, all these claims are made for political purposes.

It is true that manufacturing in the Eastern and Middle Atlantic States is undergoing a slight depression. Government investigations of railroads have disturbed values of securities on the stock markets. In the Middle Western, Southern and extreme Western States, business was never better. Approaching harvests give every prospect of still greater prosperity. There is opportunity in the West for every idle man in the East to work at good wages. So great is the demand for farm labor that farmers are willing to pay transportation in addition to wages.

This is the truth regarding the business situation, if commercial, bank, and other reports are to be relied upon; if newspaper statements are correct; and if personal letters fairly state the situation. There is no great financial panic impending. Some parts of the country are not as prosperous as they should be. The country as a whole presents fairly good business conditions with every prospect of greater activity, as soon as crops are harvested and marketed.

It Takes Brains in the Hog Business.

All is not gold that glitters, nor is the pig breeder's path altogether strewn with roses. There is other work besides clipping coupons in the pig pen. The successful handling of pigs demands constant attention and close application to every detail, and the sick pig requires almost the same care and nursing that puts the fever patient on the road to recovery. Some may wonder at one man's success and another man's failure, but the problem could be solved at once, could they follow up the daily walk and thought of each man. It takes brains in the pig pen as well as in the office to make a success of the business. The successful breeder has troubles galore, too, but he has the courage to stand pat and combat them. Big hogs are not proof against thumps, scours, worms or of the many diseases that flesh is heir to. But he watches his hogs closely each day, with that practiced eye that tells him the minute a hog is out of condition where the trouble lies. Immediately such hogs are separated from the herd and given such treatment as experience has taught him is the best in each case. Soon the sick hog is returned to the herd as cured or dies. Another may take sick, but that same watchfulness is ever present, and this sick pig follows the same course as the other. The successful breeder expects such things to occur, and being equipped to handle such cases his herd is in a large measure exempt from the more malignant forms of contagious diseases. But how about the easy-go-lucky breeder? His hogs are always healthy (so he imagines.) A case of thumps here goes unnoticed; a litter of pigs has scours, but he has not observed it until at last disease upon disease has multiplied on his hands and he cries out hog cholera is in his herd. All the patent nostrums in the country brought into use to save the herd without effect, and he gives up in despair, declaring he could never have any luck with hogs any way.

"Dat Mule."

"Down in Janesville, where I used to live," relates Dr. Washburn Yount, "there was an old colored man who owned a mule.
He had more respect for that mule than for any man, white or black. Billy claimed that the animal could do anything but talk, and that he didn't talk because he understood the superior wisdom of keeping still.

"Well, one day that mule was lost, strayed or stolen. Uncle Billy nearly had a fit. He searched diligently all day long and at the end of the day he was about ready to lie down and die. A friend tried to help him.

"Uncle Billy," he said, why don't you advertise for that mule?"

"Why'n't Ah what?"

"Advertise. Put a piece in the paper saying that he's lost.
That will bring him back if anything will."

"Uncle Billy laughed for the first time that day.

"White man," he said, between chuckles, 'dat mule er a powerful smaht animble, he suah are—but, Lawd bless you, he can't read de newspaperahs!"

Important Point.

Mrs. Ross was making her first trans-Atlantic voyage, and naturally was as full of questions
as a civil service examination.

"You must pardon my ignorance, Captain," said the good woman bustling up to the boss of the ship one day, "but there is something puzzles me exceedingly. How do you find your way across this immense ocean?"

"By means of the compass
madame," cheerfully answered
the captain. "The needle always points directly to the north.

"Yes, I see," musingly rejoined Mrs. Ross, but suppose you wanted to go south?

Our Rights at Panama.

The question of greatest national importance in relation to the Panama Canal is the one which
at the present moment is receiving the least attention. It is for this reason only that the present writer has considered it opportune and a patriotic duty to discuss at this time the meaning of the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty.

The real issue regarding the Panama Canal is not its economic advantages; which considering the small amount of interoceanic and transoceanic shipping owned by the people of the United States, is a matter of secondary interest. The vital question is does the Government of the United States possess supremacy in the Panama Canal, or does it not? Do other nations possess "entire equality" with the United States in respect of the "conditions,"—not to mention the "charges of traffic,"—or "otherwise?"

Those who interpret the second Hay-Pauncefote Treaty, now in force, in such a manner as to include the United States among the nations which are to observe the rules laid down by the United States alone for the use of the canal have apparently overlooked the fact that by that interpretation the canal is free and open to the vessels of war of the United States and those of other countries on precisely the same terms.

If this interpretation be correct, the Government of the United States, as builder and owner of the canal, is either required to pay tolls for passage
through the canal of its vessels of war, or the vessels of war of other nations are entitled to pass without payment.

It has never been contended by any one who has discussed this subject that the canal may not in accordance with the treaty, under certain circumstances be closed to the vessels of war of other nations, or that the war vessels of the United States are to pay tolls, or that other war vessels may pass through the canal without payment. Such an interpretation would prohibit the Government of the United States, the builder and owner of the canal, from embarking or disembarking troops within the Canal Zone, revictualing its own ships therein, or permitting its own vessels to remain in the waters of the canal or inside the three-mile limit beyond a specified time. Finally, it would prevent the Government of the United States from closing the canal to a fleet intending hostilities against the territory of the United States so long as it observed the rules during its transit.

This is an interpretation which is not in accordance with the expressed intentions of the treaty,
or with the change in the ground conception of it during the negotiations; and cannot be accepted without forfeiting the supremacy of the Government of the United States in the canal and abandoning all the results,

achieved with so much difficulty,
in the course of the negotiations.

ama Canal," by David Jayne Hill, in the American Review of Reviews for June.

Food Trees.

Did you know that in some countries a good part of the food comes from trees? For instance, in Venezuela is the cow tree,
which derives its name from the fact that when the trunk is cut a stream of milk gushes out—milk of thick, creamy consistency, with a balmy fragrance.
The milk flows best in the early morning and at sunset. At these times the natives come from far and near with bowls or pails to get their family supply of the milk. It is of such thickness that if left to "set" it very soon becomes cheese.

Another one of nature's dairies is the butter tree. The name is also given to several tropical trees which yield certain oils that can be used for butter. The real butter tree grows in central Africa. From the kernels of the fruit is obtained rich butter that can be preserved for a year or more.

In order to make the meal
complete there should be bread to go with the butter, and this is provided by the bread tree, which flourishes in the islands of the Pacific. The tree is of good size, with large lobed leaves and fruit of a roundish form, from four to seven inches in diameter.
This fruit when baked, resembles bread somewhat, and is eaten by the natives as such.

A boon to the weavy wayfarer is the traveler's tree, found in Madagascar. It will grow in the most arid desert, and no matter how dry the weather is, a quart of water always flows out when the stalk is punctured. The water is pure, clear and pleasant to the taste. The leaves of the tree are from 10 to 15 feet in length.

In order to provide light for their darkness, the natives of the South Sea islands make use of the candle tree. Its fruit is heart-shaped and the seeds when boiled make tallow that is excellent for candles. The natives remove the shells, bake and string the kernels and preserve them. Five or six of the kernels are enough to supply a good,
clear light.

My Affair With a Grand Duchess

By F. A. MITCHEL

I was born in the department of Tula, in Russia, and from a very early age showed a remarkable faculty for acquiring knowledge. At twelve years of age I spoke four languages.
At the university I captured most of the prizes and when I finished my course at the age of twenty was retained as a professor.

One day I was called into the private room of the head of the university, who told me that the czar had sent for me to become a tutor for the imperial children and that I was to report at the palace at once.

On arriving I was received by the czarina, who said to me:

"I am too much interested in the welfare of my children to permit any one but myself to give you your instructions. The principal thing I wish to say to you is a warning. You will be thrown in with the imperial family on a familiar footing. You will meet a number of young girls of royal blood.
If you are known to speak of love to any one of them you will be severely punished."

I knew very well what that punishment would be. I would be sent to Siberia to work in the mines. In Russia there is no law governing such cases, the emperor being an autocrat,
with power over life and death.

I entered upon my duties with no great fear in this respect, for, having been devoted to study, the softer sex had not interested me. I should not have been so confident had I known that one not given to appreciate girls in general is the most liable to succumb when thrown in with one especial girl. I was thrown in with several princesses between fourteen and twenty. I suppose they knew as well as I the danger of falling into an affair with a commoner. At any rate, they all behaved themselves with cir-cumsppection, save one girl of seventeen, between whom and me the spark of love flashed at our first meeting.

The Grand Duchess Olga was a daughter of a brother of the czar, consequently his niece. She came frequently to the palace and sometimes remained there for days at a time.
After my coming these visits occurred often and lasted longer. For some time there was nothing spoken between us that might not have been listened to by any one, but even during this time the Grand Duchess Olga and I knew that we loved each other.

One day she asked me to construe for her the words of Homer. Standing she said to me, "I am the same body I feel but mind and heart mine. So my virtue was mine in this world. I love that all the ice in Siberia could not freeze it. I was unable to withdraw my hand, and so was the grand duchess."

That was the beginning. Not a word was spoken. There was not even then a glance between us. As for me, I dared not look at her. We were not alone and could be observed by others, but no one could see that touch beneath the cover of the open book or know of the strong current that passed between us. As soon as I had stammered through the reading of the passage and I had no further excuse to remain in that position I turned the book over to her.

It was only when I went to bed that night that I realized the frightful abyss on which I stood. What should I do? I could not fly from my charmer. To leave the czar's service without being dismissed would be revolt. To remain would be to leave a hopeless love for the mines. I slept little that night, but when morning came made resolutions for the future which I considered a solution of the problem. But it was not three days before one of the little princesses, aged eight, finding the Grand Duchess Olga and myself
in the same room together, for sport locked us in.

This came upon me too suddenly for resolution.
"One kiss," I said—"the first and the last."

I put my arms about her, drew her to me and kissed her, she looking on the floor, frightened, but not resisting. Then I darted to the door and rapped loudly. An attendant unlocked it, and it so happened that when we left the room the czarina passed by. She looked searchingly at us. The grand duchess complained of the little prince, who had locked us in, and his mother re-proved him. Then, with a few kind words to the grand duchess and myself that assured us we were not in the least to blame, her majesty passed on.

That night I was awakened from slumber by a shake and, looking up,
saw an official standing over me.

"Get up," he said.

I arose and dressed myself, asking no questions. I was quite sure my kiss had been seen and I was to be sent to Siberia. But, no, I was taken to a railway station, given a ticket to the border, a passport and 5,000 rubles.
"Leave on the first train," said my conductor, "and never show yourself
in Russia again."

I have never learned how much of what passed between me and the Grand Duchess Olga had become known. My final opinion was this:
The czarina when we came out of the room in which we had been locked only for a moment read in our faces that there was more between us than our eyes warranted. She resolved to break it up, but was too kind hearted
to make a more serious matter of it than banishment for me.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

FOR JUDGE OF COURT OF APPEALS.

We are authorized to announce ROLLIN HURT a candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals, in the Third district, subject to the action of the Democratic voters, expressed at the August primary.

The Democrats of Adair and other counties in this part of the Third Appellate district, are again reminded that Hon. Rollin Hurt is a candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals in said district, and that it will be necessary for all his friends to vote. It takes votes to count in a primary. Being for a candidate and failing to attend the election would not do him any good. It is only about six weeks until the primary, and in that length of time it will be impossible for Mr. Hurt to see all his friends in the twenty-three counties composing the district, but he wants a large vote, and it is hoped that his friends are alive to his interest. Mr. Hurt's ability as a lawyer, and an upright citizen is well known, hence, no mistake will be made in nominating him for Judge of the Court of Appeals. The race at this stage of the game looks good for Mr. Hurt, but apathy upon the part of his friends might work detrimental. Work and vote for Hurt is the watch word.

The reserve banking system will necessitate the printing of more money, and the designs of the new bills are already in the hands of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. These bills will be $5, $10, $20, $50 and $100. The bills will be of a new and distinct variety and will be used by the Federal Reserve Banks. For this money acceptable commercial paper will be received from the banks by the Treasury. The new five dollar bills will be typical of agriculture. On the face of the bills will be a portrait of the martyred President Lincoln, while on the back of the bill will be shown a harvester machine and other emblems typical of farming. The $10 notes will have on the front a picture of former President Cleveland and the rear will exhibit a manufacturing scene. The $20 notes will carry a picture of President Jackson, and the rear of this bill will show scenes of commerce, probably a vestibule flyer and a modern river packet. The $50 and $100 notes will typify the arts. The first will have a picture of President Grant on the front side and the latter will show the visage of Benjamin Franklin. Black and green ink will be used on all denominations, which will be uniform as to size.

Gov. Beckham was greeted with large audiences at Greensburg and Campbellsville last week.

It looked the latter part of last week like the mediators would adjourn at Niagara Falls without accomplishing anything. Later developments, however, encouraged the Commission, and it announced that it would be in session two weeks longer with the hope of bringing about a satisfactory settlement. The authorities at Washington still believe that peace will be restored in Mexico.

Powers and Bosworth are making things hot in the Eleventh Congressional district. They are filling the papers of the district with all manner of charges, each one claiming the nomination. Bosworth says that his majority in Bell county alone will be two thousand, and that he will run Powers to the nine hole in Knox, the present representative's home county.

Members of Congress are clamoring for an early adjournment, but the President has informed Mr. Underwood, the Leader of the House, that the trust bills must be disposed of at this session. The majority leader said that would not only be done, but the the conservation bills would also be disposed of before adjournment.

Jim Frank Taylor, of Glasgow, former Surveyor of the Port, Louisville, is the Republican candidate for Congress in the Third district. He is without opposition for the nomination.

The trouble in Mexico is not yet settled, but the mediators continue to work to that end. President Wilson is still confident that peace will be brought about. So mote it be.

There are three candidates for Congress in the Eighth district. A Democrat, a Republican and a Progressive.

From Washington, D. C.

[BY J. E. JONES.]

Editor News:

A few years ago much stress was laid upon that class of education which was "finished abroad," but "abroad" appears to have been moved from Europe to the United States. It is shown by official figures that the United States furnished only 351 students for German "finishing schools" and other educational institutions in 1913. Of these 328 were from northern states and twenty-three from southern states. The number of foreign students enrolled at 275 American universities, colleges, and technological schools in the year 1913 not only reached the surprising total of 4,222, but this was an actual increase of 577 over 1911. Travelers upon the boats going to, or coming from, South America, are impressed with the number of young men whose mission to the United States concerns the matter of their education. These young men after graduation, have proven their benefit to the foreign trade of the United States through the demand they have created for the American articles to which they have become accustomed, and in their business and official life they quite universally specify American equipment for foreign enterprise.

There are 1700 foreign students enrolled in the under graduate classes of arts and sciences in the United States. The next largest number is in courses in engineering, 801; medicine follows with 339; 303 in dentistry; 275 in agriculture; and 256 in theology.

Canada sent 653 students; China, 594; Japan, 336; Mexico, 223; Great Britain and Ireland, 212; Cuba, 209; India, 162; Finland, 124; Germany, 122. Every Latin-American country except French Guiana has representatives in this group of foreign students. The numbers range from two in the case of Uruguay and Paraguay through 43 for Argentina, 113 for Brazil, to the Mexican total of 223.

MAY MODIFY TARIFF.

There is a growing impression in well-informed circles here that the tariff plans of the Administration as embodied in the Underwood bill will be modified in one important particular at least. The rumored change is one that can be made very easily if the President and Congress are so minded, for it will consist merely in eliminating the proviso at the end of Schedule E, which declares that after May 1, 1916, sugar shall be admitted duty free. Two factors are said to be influential in inducing the Democratic leaders to look favorably upon this course. The first is the consideration that the revenue of nearly $40,000,000 from sugar, always the best revenue produced of the tariff list, will be needed to help fill the growing gap between government income and expenditure. The second is the result of investigations which the Department of Commerce has made into conditions in the Louisiana sugar fields, and which are now being extended to the sugar beet states. It is reported that the figures collected by the government experts show that the home sugar industry will be badly crippled by the free admission of foreign sugar. While the President is not likely to commit himself until the reports of his investigators are completed it is noteworthy that most of the talk of a possible amendment of the sugar tariff comes Democratic sources.

TABOOS HOG CHOLERA "CURE."

A warning has been issued from Washington against the latest cure for hog cholera, which has been receiving much praiseworthy comment from the public press. The statement of the federal government says that "it has no reason to believe in the efficiency of any proprietary cure for hog cholera and does not recommend it. "Under certain conditions it urges farmers to protect their stock with anti-hog cholera serum, but that is all."

CLEVELAND AND WILSON.

The older politicians purport to see something of a similarity in the conditions surrounding President Wilson with those which brought so much trouble to Grover Cleveland, and Senator Vardaman, of Mississippi, in his speech upon the canal question, suggested that the President has heard too much flattery and too little advice. This is a condition true to every President. The majority of public men who visit the White House are seeking favors, and adopt the address of courtiers. When Mr. Cleveland was President he came to Washington as a stranger to the national leaders of his party. Therefore he endeavored to "make haste slowly" in the matter of appointments, just as President Wilson has done; with the result that a good many of the patronage hunting Congressmen held fast to executive favor, Cleveland and Wilson are alike in one respect, in that they are regarded as very amiable when under criticism. Mr. Wilson has exercised the same sort of influence over Democratic leaders of this day as Mr. Cleveland did over those of his time, and it may be that the beginning of open criticism has been marked by the attitude of Speaker Champ Clark and Leader Oscar Underwood, who have been the first to indulge in anything like plain talk to their chief.

MR. BRYAN'S AMBITIONS.

Secretary Bryan recently revealed his early ambitions, and disclosed during an address, proof that he has gone far afield from what he anticipated would be his life work. Mr. Bryan says: "I commenced with a desire to be a Baptist preacher. Before I was six years old I wanted to be a farmer and raise pumpkins. My father was a Judge, and I remember the old court house where I used to listen to cases. This ambition guided me through my boyhood and college days." Following along the events of his earlier life, Mr. Bryan says that he "got into politics by accident and stayed there by design." He says that when he was first nominated for Congress that there was no thought that he would be elected. His comment was to the effect that "circumstances rule our lives." Mr. Bryan says he has gotten along so far in his languages that he is able to dream in Spanish. Incidentally the Secretary has practically completed arrangements for an active season on the Chautauqua platform.

HOPE FOR CONSERVATION BILLS.

There is a hopeful prospect that the five conservation bills, including the radium measure and the Alaskan coal lands measures will be passed at this session of Congress. Secretary of the Interior, Lane, and Representative, Henry, Chairman of the House Rules Committee, have been in consultation with President Wilson, and have urged that the conservation measures be added to the House program. The people of public lands states have long patiently waited for the government to act favorably upon their measures, and it may be that the next Democratic caucus will decide to put these measures up to Congress.

HOW THE WORLD "DO MOVE."

It is not many years since the last international yacht race was held, but at that time it was not necessary for the Department of Commerce of the United States to make the regulations that have been issued for the coming races. These pertain to the transmission of wireless bulletins from the course during the progress of the race, as well as the taking of moving pictures. But one wireless press boat and one moving picture boat are to be allowed in the course.

MR. TAFT ON SOCIALISM.

Ex-President Taft in his Indiana speech, has something of

Beef and Milk A-plenty

Cattle are kept for two purposes; for beef production and for milk production. To do either right they must be healthy. There is nothing better to keep them in continued good health, or to make them well quickly when sick, than a few doses of—a new angle to the argument that all socialism must fall, "because it finds no substitute for the motive essential to arouse and make constant human effort that is furnished by the institution of private property and the shaping of reward by competition and natural economic adjustment.

Burleson and His Fence.

When Postmaster General Burleson was a member of the house he rushed into his committee room one day and announced that he had at last obtained the iron fence around the old Pennsylvania station in Washington.

A cub reporter who happened to be present wrote a story about the fence and after stating the facts expressed the opinion that it would soon adorn one of the public parks in Burleson's district in Texas.

The Texas correspondents wired the story to their papers, and soon Burleson was deluged with telegrams.

Encountering the cub reporter, Burleson angrily demanded to know what he had written about the fence.

"What's the matter?" innocently asked the reporter.

"What's the matter?" shouted Burleson. "I paid $125 for that fence at public auction; I paid $100 to have it painted black and have the tops gilded; I paid $75 freight on it to my home in Austin, Tex., where it was to be placed on my home grounds. What's the matter? Why, now I've got to give the consigned thing away!" —Washington Star.

The Little Things of Life.

Around the little things of life
A world of storm and sunshine lies,
Yet those too busy seldom see
The tired look in other eyes.

Around the little things of life
A wealth of loving memories center,
And joys undreamt of by the world
The humblest dwelling places enter.

Around the little things of life
Connected by a thread so slender,
Are long lost smiles and bygone tears
Which helped to make our hearts more tender.

Aias, how many things in life
Are those of which we cannot boast!
Actions and words we think our best—
How poor and weak they are at most!

More full of love, oh, may they be.
Less full of self as in the past!
Help us, dear Lord, to offer thee
More perfect "little things" at last.

—M. Wayman.

Took Him at His Word.

The late King Edward, who so highly appreciated wit, even when, as sometimes happened, the joke went against himself, was once very neatly "scored off" by a lady whom later he deservedly esteemed for her many good works. She had just been presented to him and was somewhat nervous. To put her at her ease his majesty said, "Oh, Miss —, I want to have a long chat with you, but if I should unfortunately bore you pray tell me so." The king, who was an adroit cross examiner, wished to ascertain the young lady's age, which he had no intention of divulging. "You have already said you were born at —," said the monarch. "May I ask in what year?" "You bore me, sir!" was the smiling reply, and his majesty took the checkmate in the greatest good humor.

Giddy Girl.

In Mr. Thorold's "Life of Henry La bouchere" this story is quoted: The Grand Duchess of Tuscany had a venerable maid of honor about seventy years of age. She had piercing black eyes and looked like an old post chaise painted up and with new lamps. "How old do you think I am?" she once asked me with a smirking smile that caused my blood to run cold. I hesitated and then said, "Twenty." "Flatterer," she replied, tapping me with her fan. "I am twenty-five."

The Busy Man's Romance.

He was a very busy man, and she was a very pretty girl. She insisted upon having a love letter every day. She got it.

"You write the loveliest letters, dear!" she said. "And when you are so very, very busy all the time I think it is splendid of you to think of me!" "I don't forget you," he replied. "My secretary has instructions to write you a letter for me to sign every morning. He is a most efficient and capable young man."

"And you don't know how greatly I appreciate the flowers you send me every week."

"I'm glad you get them. I told my secretary to make a memo, to send you some every Saturday."

"How systematic! And it is so thoughtful of you to think of the plays I like best and the books I prefer."

"It's a pleasure to know you are pleased. My secretary gets the tickets and picks out the books. He is a very capable fellow."

Two months later the very busy man said:

"Hang him! I don't mind so much his eloping with my fiancée, but how in thunder can I break in another secretary?"

Laughter and Tears.

One of London's bright young journalists who went to interview Mme. Sarah Bernhardt recently tried to converse with the great actress in her own language. His French was so bad, however, that at last, in despair, madame switched the conversation into English.

She speaks English fairly well, but after a minute or two she made a bad blunder, and the journalist was unable to restrain a smile.

"Why do you laugh?" madame asked him.

"I'm awfully sorry," he apologized; "but as a matter of fact, your English made me laugh a little."

"Mon Dieu," gasped madame; "my English made you laugh a little! But your French made me weep a lot!"

How to be Certain of Curing Constipation

Prejudice is a hard thing to overcome, but where health is at stake and the opinion of thousands of reliable people differs from yours, prejudice then be- comes your menace and you ought to lay it aside. This is said in the interest of people suffering from chronic constipation, and it is worthy of their attention.

In the opinion of legions of reliable American people the most stubborn constipation imaginable can be cured by a brief use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You may not have heard of it before, but do not doubt its merits on that account, or because it has not been blatantly advertised. It has sold very successfully on word of mouth recommendation. Parents are giving it to their children today who were given it by their parents, and it has been truthfully said that more druggists use it personally in their families than any other laxative.

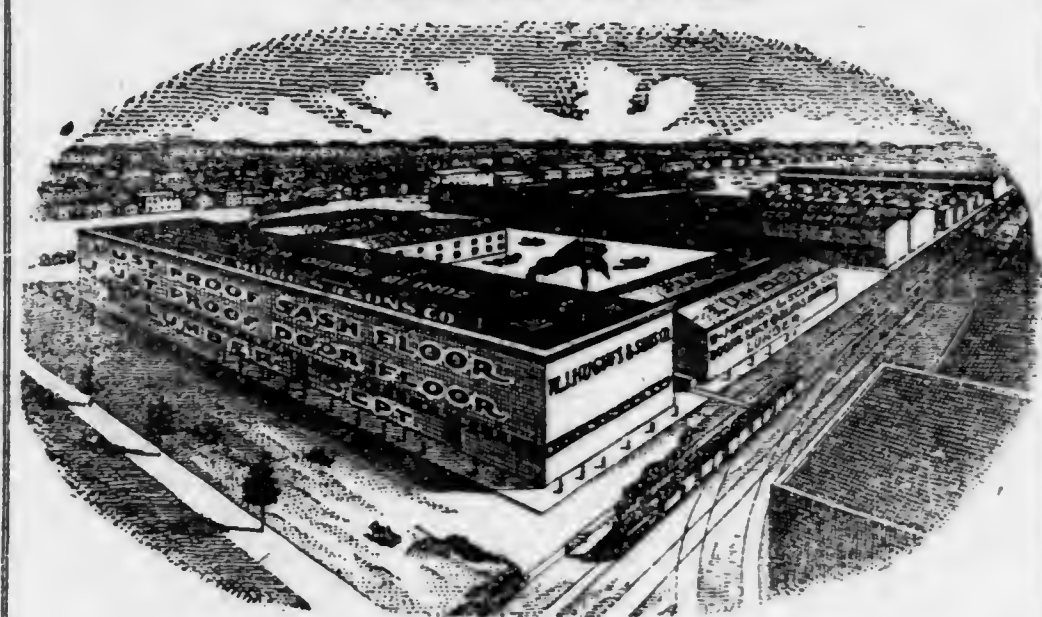

Letters recently received from M. E. Myers, Morrison, Tenn., and Ada Hamersmith, 118 W. Chestnut St., Louisville, Ky., are but a few of thousands showing the esteem in which Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is held. It is mild, gentle, non-gripping—not violent, like salts or cathartics. It cures gradually and pleasantly so that in time nature again does its own work without outside aid. Constipated people owe it to themselves to use this grand bowel specific.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

We would be pleased to send the Daily State Journal, Frankfort, from now until the first of April for 50 cents. Or better still we will furnish the Adair County News, one year and the Daily State Journal until April last for $1.25. If you want to keep in touch with the doings at Frankfort while the Legislature is in session, you should have the State Journal.

STOMACH TROUBLE FOR FIVE YEARS

Majority of Friends Thought Mr. Hughes Would Die, But One Helped Him to Recovery.

Pomeroyton, Ky.—In interesting advice from this place, Mr. A. J. Hughes writes as follows: "I was down with stomach trouble for five (5) years, and would have sick headache so bad, at times, that I thought surely I would die. I tried different treatments, but they did not seem to do me any good.

I got so bad, I could not eat or sleep, and all my friends, except one, thought I would die. He advised me to try Thedford's Black-Draught, and quit taking other medicines. I decided to take his advice, although I did not have any confidence in it.

I have now been taking Black-Draught for three months, and it has cured me—haven't had those awful sick headaches since I began using it.

I am so thankful for what Black-Draught has done for me."

Thedford's Black-Draught has been found a very valuable medicine for derangements of the stomach and liver. It is composed of pure, vegetable herbs, contains no dangerous ingredients, and acts gently, yet surely. It can be freely used by young and old, and should be kept in every family chest.

Record Wheat Crop.

The Department of Agriculture predicts a wheat crop of 900,000,000 bushels, which, realized, will be 137,000,000 more than ever before was grown in the United States. Such a crop will represent one-half of the world's supply, thus making the United States in fact the granary of the world.

Two favorable conditions have contributed to this record-breaking crop. First, the acreage was 6.4 per cent. larger than that of any previous year; second, weather conditions have been favorable from the beginning. If weather conditions so continue the yield may be even larger than present estimates. These conditions are quite in contrast to those obtaining in other wheat growing countries in both Europe and South America. The prospects there are for less than a normal yield. Should the American farmer harvest well, his wheat will bring him splendid returns as export demands will amount to 250,000,000 bushels, if not more.

A record wheat crop combined with export opportunities may not reduce the cost of living, but will certainly add materially to the wealth of the country. The natural influence of such increase of wealth is to induce more prosperous times than some parts of the country are now having. The American farmer may yet be able to claim greater contribution to business activity than the manufacturer and the miner combined.

Deadliest Living Thing.

There is nothing in insects or animal life to equal the virulence of the phalange and the activity of its attack. The tarantula, so horribly gay in the long hairs covering body and legs, compared to it is a tame thing. Every year it takes a very heavy toll in life on the steppes of Eastern Turkestan and Central Asia. One Russian authority places the death caused among the Kirgizes by its sting as high as 94 per cent., while among animals the ratio is equally as excessive.

Resembling the spider and of globular shape, the phalange has eight not very long legs. It is of a reddish-brown, and its transparent skin is covered with long hairs. The mouth is formed by four branches, and the mandibles present four sharp claws with which it inflicts the wound. When the insect bites iron, it can be heard. It is found in marshy lands, near water pools, too, and also in houses, for it shows a distinct preference for the neighborhood of human life.

When the high winds blow in spring and autumn, the phalange quits its hole and invades the nearest tent or house. Seeming when walking almost as large as one's two fists put together, it runs very quickly, and when angered raises on its eight legs and boldly attacks. The moment one interferes with it he is sure to be bitten. About two minutes later the victim experiences a most violent thirst, and on drinking water expires almost immediately. If, however, he can intoxicate himself and induce sickness, the poison appears to be partly neutralized, and after the application of this most efficacious remedy he or she may recover.

When, however, the insect's bite is but slight, and it has not succeeded in spitting onto the wound an infinitesimally small white web, which hastens the work of the poison, there appears to be but little danger, though, invariably, use is made of the one specific remedy recognized by both the Kirgizes and Russians—that is, the sap squeezed out of the madder plant and applied to the wound as a lotion.

To the healthy and unhealthy individual alike there is no more dangerous sting in the world than that inflicted by the phalange or "pachaclung" (insect of the eight legs,) stung by the Kirgizes and Mongols.

Do the Planets Affect our Weather?

(Washington News Letter.)

One of our correspondents wishes us to tell him through the News Letter whether the positions of the planets have any effect on the weather.

A few people strongly assert that they do, while many others, like our correspondent, have their doubts, but are willing to be "shown." Those, however, who have given the subject careful attention are positive that none of the planets, nor even the moon, ever has any appreciable effect on the weather.

As a matter of fact all weather changes depend ultimately upon temperature differences. The temperature, as we know, constitutes of itself a most important weather factor. Another and equally important weather factor is rainfall. But to obtain rain it is necessary first to evaporate water from the surface of the earth, and this, as every one knows, requires heat. Still another important factor is the direction and force of the wind, and this, too, requires heat, for the winds will not blow unless the temperature is different at one place from what it is another any more than the air will draw up a chimney when there is no fire in it.

Since then the heating of different parts of the earth and its atmosphere to different temperatures is the real cause of the winds and of all weather changes it follows that the moon and the planets can affect the weather only so far as they supply heat. Now, according to accurate measurements made with the most delicate instruments, the amount of heat sent to the earth by all the planets and also by the moon is insignificant in comparison to the amount that comes from the sun. Hence we could not expect either the planets or the moon appreciably to affect the weather. They do not supply enough heat, the one thing that causes all our weather changes.

To most people the above reasoning may seem quite sufficient and conclusive, but there is still another and an entirely different method of testing the whole question. We can observe the positions of the planets and the kind of weather during each position and see whether the same sort of weather always comes when the planets are in the same position. This kind of examination has often been made, both for the planets and for the moon but not the slightest influence of either upon our weather has ever been found.

To sum up: We have every reason to believe that neither the planets nor the moon can have any appreciable effect on the weather, because they furnish so little heat upon which all weather changes ultimately depend, and this belief is fully supported by weather records.

The belief, still to be found in all countries, that the planets and the moon do affect the weather never had any scientific basis whatever; it is only a remnant of the many superstitions generated and fostered by that other and greater superstition, astrology.

Caleb Powers Makes Bad Break

(Elizabethtown News.)

The fight for the Republican nomination in the Eleventh Congressional District between Congressman Caleb Powers and Senator Joe Bosworth is none of our fight. It is our fight, however, when Powers undertakes to condemn State aid to roads because Mr. Bosworth supported that measure. If Mr. Powers is quoted correctly he said that under the State Aid bill the people of his district would be taxed to help build roads in the Blue Grass country. The reverse of that is true. The people of the Blue Grass and other rich sections of the State will be taxed to build roads in the Eleventh Congressional District. Under the new road law the poorest county in the State will be able to draw for road purposes as much from the State treasury as the county of Jefferson. All of the counties in the Eleventh District are poorer counties and every one of them, therefore, will draw for road purposes from the State Treasury more than they pay into the State Treasury for that purpose. The great majority of these counties will draw from three to five dollars where they pay in one. The general principle of the road law is the same as the school law. It is well known that the counties of the Eleventh Congressional District draw from three to five dollars where they pay in one on the State School tax. It would be just as near true to charge that the people of the Eleventh Congressional District were forced, under the law to pay school tax to educate the children in the Blue Grass as it is to charge that they are to be taxed to build roads in the Blue Grass. If this charge is to be made an issue between Mr. Bosworth and Mr. Powers the Senator from Bell has all the advantage of it, for the people of the Eleventh District know that no part of the State will be more benefitted by State Aid to roads and that they will be called upon to pay the smallest part of the tax of any Congressional District in the State. The maximum amount that any county can draw from the State is $10,000 per annum, while the average to be paid by taxation in the counties of this district will not exceed $2,000 a year. In Caleb Powers' bad break he has put a noose around his neck for Joe Bosworth to hang him with in the August primary.
